

Vicki Stuart · 4 years ago

I would prefer not to be listed on yelp ever, but consumer like to check out business on yelp and your positive reviews will not stay on the site unless you have advertising account. This is form of blackmail from yelp, and I would say that this is disturbing tendency. Business community should be aware of this business practice.

36 ^ | v · Reply · Share >

WLV Lightng → Vicki Stuart · 3 years ago

That's not accurate at all. I have 4 5 star reviews for my business and have never given a dime to Yelp.

8 ^ | v · Reply · Share >

Yla → Vicki Stuart · 2 years ago

Vicki, I agree greatly! Def. feels like blackmailing. All of our new reviews would get filtered until we began advertising with them. then they all magically came back. A few months later got a call from our rep and was asked to increase our budget, i told him that it was not possible at the time and what do ya know. 4 positive reviews were filtered 2 days later.

3 ^ | v · Reply · Share >

Ashley Nguyen → Vicki Stuart · 3 months ago

I agree with you. We are a startup business and did not advertise on Yelp. They filtered 7 out of 9 reviews from our patients and part of the reason is that we decided not to do business with them. They kept on calling us and emailing us to do so, but I felt like I've been bullied by Yelp.

^ | v · Reply · Share >

Lance Throttle · 4 years ago

I use yelp for my other business, I fear listing it as my Yelp credibility could get even worse than it already is. I have been paying the evil dollar to yelp to the tune of $550 a month. The filter has us losing our mind. The positive reviews do not stick more often. I can't wait until my yelp contract is up. Do not sign up and do not pay them the monthly fees.

33 ^ | v · Reply · Share >

Chris Rodriguez → Lance Throttle · a year ago

i agree, i only got he 6 month plan and i regret it now. its 325 monthly which is ridiculous for not even getting any leads from it. I get more leads from traditional advertisement and word of mouth than what yelp has ever claimed to offer

1 ^ | v · Reply · Share >